

Croyard Medical Practice Fees for Private/Non-NHS Services 2024

Why do GPs sometimes charge fees?

GPs are not directly employed by the NHS, and are instead contracted to provide NHS service on their behalf to their registered patients. There may be other requested services not covered under this contract that your Doctor can provide for a separate fee.

The below list of charges is not exhaustive and is given as a general guide. Please discuss with the practice receptionist if what you require isn't listed, so it can be established for you whether your requested service is available from the practice.

If your desired examination/certificate or other requested non-NHS service isn't available from the practice, there are many other providers available privately who may be able to assist you. Please note that Croyard Medical Practice is not under any obligation to provide or undertake private work and activity out with the scope of their NHS General Medical Services contract.

Please also consult the practice policy regarding private medical appointments including any related tests, checks and follow up, which remain the responsibility of your chosen private provider to organise and arrange. This may include blood tests, scans and interpretation of imaging or blood results.

If you have any specific questions, the practice reception team will be able to answer your query.
